

What is the Ephesus SDA-BND Summer Media Camp?

Now in its second year, the BND Institute of Media and Culture's 2019 Summer Media Camp combines journalism and multi- platform media technology for Richmond, Va. - area students in grades 8 through 12 to create and display their work via an online presence. The camp is led by Bonnie Newman Davis, who has more than 35 years experience as a newspaper and online journalist and university professor. We are thrilled to say that this year's camp again will take place June 24 – 28, 2019 at Ephesus SDA Academy, 3700 Midlothian Turnpike, Richmond, VA 23224.

During the camp, students will build their confidence as they learn about media literacy and gain more awareness about their individual and collective communities. This program will tap into and explore students' creativity, writing, editing and video skills. Students will work with professional media writers, editors, videographers and special guests who will lead them through various aspects of digital storytelling.

Besides the technical skills students develop, we include time for field trips to local media outlets. Such outings enlighten our students about news media operations and enable them to meet professionals in an industry in which they one day may work.

For an application and more information, please contact Bonnie Newman Davis bonninewmandavis@gmail.com, call 804 683-7203, or visit bndimc.org

Summer Media Camp 2018 Video Link: <http://bit.ly/2AEb011>

The BND Institute of Media and Culture was founded in 2016 by Bonnie Newman Davis, a journalist, journalism educator and media consultant. The Institute, located in Richmond, Va., provides programs, services and training dedicated to educating and engaging diverse audiences about contemporary news media and its impact on African-American life and culture. The BND Institute of Media and Culture is a 501 (c) (3) charitable and nonprofit organization.

